Historical return

Prices for Móyòsóré Martins' 180 x 150 cm paintings have progressed over the preceding three and a half years from $5,000 to a current $30,000. His work has been collected by more than 125 collectors with about 200 paintings sold over the period. He has become somewhat of a cult figure. There have been fifteen gallery exhibitions, three in the near future, Geneva this September, Paris the following month, and another in Germany in early 2025. Demand for his works is consistent as the collector base expands.

Fun facts:

Móyòsóré Martins, forbidden from studying or creating art at his youth, studied computer science until he moved to New York in 2015 to pursue his passion.

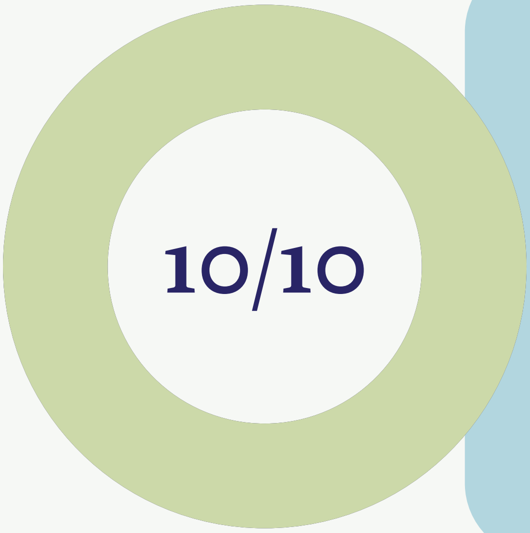
Rating



Return

According to the "2021 Global Art Market & COVID-19 Report" by Citi Private Bank, contemporary art generated a profit of 6.7%, surpassing the returns of other art sectors at 5.5%.

The prices of Martins' works have increased by 500% over the last 3.5 years, and these works come directly from the artist's gallery.

Stability

In terms of investment potential, art has consistently outperformed other types of assets such as the S&P 500 and the FTSE 100 over the past two decades.
The relative illiquidity of art works particularly in its favor, especially for assets that retain a stable value and exhibit minimal correlation with the stock market.

Track Record

Martins' work has already participated in fifteen gallery exhibitions, including notable events such as Scope Miami, Art Basel Hong Kong, and Now, They Know... in Beirut.
He plans to persist in exhibiting his work in the future, with forthcoming showcases_ one in Geneva this September, one in Paris the following month, and another in Germany in early 2025.
